

I have come to love XM radio because of the variety, which is non existent in a rural state such as Montana. I could never get sports radio etc. I still listen to local radio for certain programs, but I now prefer XM. I would have really appreciated the travel information when I lived in Seattle and Ft. Lauderdale. The information was not constant and you would have to bounce from radio station to radio station to get a better idea on commute plans, espeically in Seattle. A benefit with XM radio I did not expect is, I stay awake better when driving. The variety has kept my attention and I become less drowsy. I would be very disappointed if XM or Sirius were not allowed to continue to improve their product due to government regulations that would only benefit large AM/FM radio stations.
